I try not to winge about the otherside but is that bloke for real. The "whys my steering not straight" thread has been tydied up so only the relevant posts are there, and no back biting, whinging or slapping (all of his posts gone). And he posts asking why it's been cut to size "are the mods GOD". Is there a better way of getting banned quicker?

He's got to be some troll, or something. I would never imagine going on a forum and starting like that, well at least not until I knew what it was like. And that I could get away with givin the owner grief (or sleepless nights and days).

He's the worst type of Amercian, loud, arrogant, and can't take a hint.

So far he's just a dickhead with reasonable taste in a SUV.

He burned the help bridge almost immediately.

He seems to be more into to trying to convince people that his truck/ability/guns/job/knowledge/skill/ego/snow/hat/whoop/back slap or whatever is bigger and better than ours. I've seen a couple of forums where they don't help per se, they just boast about what they have or can do. I thought it was hilarious when he said he'd fitted a roof rack; aye, that's a right technical job on a 3rd gen!

I try not to dislike Americans but some of them make it so easy.

No massive shock about which member instantly warmed to him.

Posted by: Apache
Date: 22-01-2010 11:59:31

I still wonder if he was a certain ex-member on a wind-up, but then he did behave stereotypically 'yank'. I tried to give him an 'in' to think about the moderation, and why it was applied, but it obviously it went straight over his head.

Paul, I got a big up to date UK frequency list in Excel format the other day, I'll email it to you when I think on.

Posted by: TonyN
Date: 22-01-2010 12:07:23

Someone ought to invite him over here! He can be as gobby as he likes then, and we'll see what he's really made of when we can poke back.

He's probably a OK guy as far as it goes, hes issues with listening to advice and toning things down for newbies a bit don't apply as much here.

I personally didn't have that much of a problem with him in himself, but when someone just gives the middle finger when asked nicely to comply with how things are done, then there is no point having him around.

Ah they have the old Morris Minor, Austin and Royal Enfield production lines out there and still make them, thats from when car production was engineering not like the plastic airfix kits that roll off the modern production lines.
