I seem to be coming to the inescapable conclusion that I want another Surf - which as we haven't moved house yet, and wont be until mid-2011, means I will have to sell the GT-Four...

I am now teetering on the fence between hanging on another 12 months, or just going for it now.

I suppose I've done it now though, I've owned a car that I always wanted to own so can tick that box. I miss the practicality of the Surf. Being able to throw bikes, RC planes, stuff for the tip in the back. I miss not caring if it gets scratched etc. I'm paranoid about the GT-4, hate leaving it parked anywhere etc.

Oh I dunno!!! HELPPPP!!!!

Start gathering bits to build a lexsurf. A real nice one. That way you can get an old nail of a 2.4 cheap, and add the shiny bits as and when funds allow. Then you dont have to sell the rollerskate, All the bits can be piled up at your friendly neighbourhood lexsurf builders, and it should all be done and ready for oh... mid 2011... Everybody is happy... :D

:D

We know how you've treated that thing Bob, there's absolutely no chance of any of us buying it for much more than £60.
